Instance Based learning

Some simple non-parametric models are models based directly on instances; this family of methods is called instance-based learning methods.
The algorithm will not create any additional data structure, just use the dataset.